Survey Discloses Field Crops Late in Hempstead County

Cotton and Corn Small for Time of Year Due to Late Planting

INCREASED ACREAGE

Acres of Vegetables and Truck Crops Larger
Than Last Year

Farmers living in practically every section of the county report field and truck crops from one to thirty days late this year. This is attributed to several causes, among them being the continued heavy rains and frost early in March, which delayed the planting season, and the lack of real growing weather.

Reporting on cotton, most of the growers say they have decreased their acreage somewhat this season. The crop is small but in every section of the county it is said that an unusually good stand has been obtained. Cotton fields are in good state of cultivation.

Planting has begun on a great many farms and is expected to be completed within the next two weeks. With warm weather the crop is expected to show rapid growth from this date. Rains of late week were said to have been beneficial in bringing the late planted cotton up to a good stand. Most growers reported that the cold nights and east winds of a week ago kept the crop from making any noticeable growth.

The corn acreage, according to most farmers, is slightly larger than last year. On well drained farms and where fertilizer has been used, this crop has shown a rapid growth during the past week. Most of the corn in the county has been given the second plowing.

Increased Truck Acreage

Several growers have complained about getting a poor stand of watermelons. The early planted patches, where a good stand was secured, are showing a rapid growth. Most of the growers have their ground in a fine state of cultivation. Those who have replanted their patches are expected to get a good stand since the rains last week.

Cantaloupes are expected to be one of the leading crops this season. Blevins, known as the cantaloupe section of the county, reports a normal acreage. Patmos, Washington, Ozan and Emmet have an acreage of cantaloupes this year. In some of these communities this is the first time the crop has been planted in marketable quantities. At Blevins, growers are said to have had some trouble with insects on their vines. This is the only community reporting any such trouble.

Hempstead county also has an increased acreage in tomatoes this year. This is a new crop in some sections of the county, especially in the Patmos community, where between 50 and 100 acres have been set out. Blevins, McCaskill and Hope have been shipping tomatoes for several seasons and many of the growers in these sections have reported this to be a profitable crop.

Gecht Kidnapers Given Life Terms

Pingera and Thomas, Who Feared Death Verdict,
Asked Mercy

CHICAGO — (AP) — Two kidnapers who sought the mercy of the court were sentenced to life imprisonment Tuesday. They are John Pingera and William Thomas who pleaded guilty to kidnaping Mrs. Georgia Gecht for $2,000 ransom.

The two men feared a verdict of death for the jury picked to try them and changed their plea. Another who stood trial as the alleged go-between for the gang, former Assistant State's Attorney Ward Swallow, was acquitted by the jurors. Swallow was a close friend of Mrs. Gecht and her husband, Dr. Max Gecht, who also was kidnaped and released to pay ransom for his wife.

In sentencing Pingera and Thomas, Judge Sullivan said the "very nature of the crime calls for the death penalty." But the court said he decreed life imprisonment inasmuch as the state did not demand the extreme punishment.

A fourth man, Edward Finnen, was freed when the indictment against him was nolle prossed, while the fifth, Neil Montague, escaped from the county jail while awaiting trial. Pingera and Thomas were taken to the state prison at Joliet.

State's First Court Built at Washington

Original Courthouse of Territory of Missouri Days
Was Erected Seven Miles Northwest of Present
Structure—War Scenes Once Thrilled This Pioneer Settlement

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the third of a series of articles written by the sophomore history class of Hope High School on Hempstead county topics.

By Katie McDaniel

The first courthouse of Arkansas was built seven miles northwest of Washington and about a half-mile west of where the J. W. Williams mansion stood. Williams moved the wood structure to his premises and up to the close of the war it formed a part of the negro quarters on his plantation.

Steven Austin, an immortal Texas patriot, then a federal judge for Arkansas Territory, held the first court which ever set in the first courthouse erected in Hempstead county. The courthouse was a crude uncouth, log shanty.

Because of the location of this old courthouse, the seat of justice was removed to Washington. The first committee to select the site for the courthouse was named in 1828, the following being on the committee: James Moss, Heuliet Burt, Merritt Edwards, J. B. Davis, and Elizabeth Stuart. This courthouse was made from the heart of good lumber, about fifty feet square, put up by free labor and it took five years to complete the building. James Moss, one of the members of the committee to select a site, was the first judge, serving from 1828 to 1832. There was one legislative meeting in this old building and it sat in 1863.

Governor Flanagan
It was in this building that Governor

Flanagan issued many of the official war orders. But finally the state records were hauled all the way from Little Rock, a distance of about one hundred and fifty miles, in wagons which were drawn by oxen, former Governor Reeder being in charge of the moving. From that time on Washington's old court house, that had echoed previously to the sound of legal debate and oratory, now felt the tread of soldiery; then the little town of Washington became the scene of many more stirring events of history, and it also became the rallying place for soldier and sailor alike. Not unusual was it for slaves to be sold from the door-steps of the little building that time has made so dear to the hearts of Arkansas people; often within its walls military bodies met to form their plans as did the councils of state.

Several aged residents of Washington remember the time when the old courthouse had this distinction of being the state capital. Among them are "Uncle Ab" Smith, who born in the country nearly eighty years ago, and Bob Samuels, an aged negro who played a prominent part in politics during the Republican regime after the Civil war.

This building which was the first permanent courthouse of Hempstead county is nearly one hundred years old. During those many years it has become rich in memories, not only of the Civil war period but also of the pioneer times. You readers may not

Durbin Indicted on Blackmail Charge

Ohio Democratic Leader
Also Accused of Attempted Bribery

BUCKEY, O. — (AP) — An indictment charging attempted bribery, attempted blackmail and circulation of unsigned election literature, was returned Tuesday by the Grand Jury against W. W. Durbin, Kenton, well known figure in Ohio Democratic circles.

A second defendant identified only as C. Mulcahy, was indicted for alleged attempted bribery and blackmail. Durbin denied the charges and claimed he was being persecuted.

The former chairman of the state Democratic Executive Committee and delegate-at-large to the Chicago convention next month, was alleged to have circulated unsigned literature attacking Charles F. Schaber, Bucyrus, and John A. Key, Marion, unsuccessful candidates for the Eighth Ohio district congressional Democratic nomination. Brooks Fletcher, Marion, former congressman, supported by Durbin in the campaign, won the nomination.

The indictment charging attempted blackmail and attempted bribery alleges that Mulcahy, representing himself an agent for Durbin, approached Prosecutor J. Dudley Sears and said he and Durbin would drop a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor they held against Sears if the prosecutor would halt the investigation of Durbin.

In his statement, Durbin said he had never talked with Sears and had not authorized any other person to talk with the prosecutor. He claimed the charges were "trumped up, ridiculous."

Whipping of Dead Man's Son Said to Have Caused Original Trouble

PRINCETON, Ky. — (AP) — Walter Merrick, 48, was removed from the county jail Tuesday night by a mob and his body was found hanging from a tree three miles from here early Wednesday.

The lynching party entered the room of Curt Jones, the county jailer, bound him and departed with their prisoner, without arousing the citizens living nearby.

The victim was to have been tried June 13 on a charge of dynamiting the store of P. Poole T. Hopson last February.

P. Poole was seriously injured and was in a hospital for two months. The explosion, officers charged, was set off by Merrick as a result of Merrick's son being whipped by a school teacher.

P. Poole, chairman of the county school board sided with the teacher of the school in the difficulty.

Man Gashed With Knife, 2 Arrested

Jack Mimms Wounded,
Arrested With Jess
Cornelius

One man was left with a gash five inches wide on his neck that required 17 stitches to close up, following an altercation which occurred Wednesday morning at the home of Jess Cornelius, near the golf course.

Officers Clarence Baker and Brice Arnett were called to the Cornelius home where they found Jack Mimms, aged about 26, suffering from a deep gash on his neck.

Cornelius and Mimms had been drinking and later engaged in a quarrel which resulted in a fight between the two men, according to officers.

Both men were arrested, charged with being drunk, fighting, and disturbing the peace. Cornelius is held in the city jail, while Mimms was taken to Washington and lodged in a cell there.

A preliminary hearing before Judge Gentry has been set for Monday morning.

Giant Coast Defense Guns Head for Scrap Pile

Seventeen giant U. S. Coast artillery guns discarded by the government and collected from eastern seaboard fortresses, are pictured above in the railroad yards of Columbus, Ohio, en route to steel mills at Weirton, West Virginia, where they will be scrapped. Each gun, including its truck, weighs 272 tons. Railroad officials planned to place six gondolas between guns to prevent overloading on bridges. Built on wheels for quick transportation over regular railroad systems, each gun is as long as three ordinary freight cars.

House Votes Probe of Federal Sales

Purchase of Pink Pajamas
at Army Post Starts
Inquiry

WASHINGTON — Confronted by an array of manufactured articles, featured by a pair of ladies pink pajamas, alleged to be sold by the government in competition with private business, the House of Representatives Tuesday voted to set up a committee of its members to investigate and recommend whatever legislation might be necessary to take Uncle Sam out of the competitive market.

By a vote of 176 to 129, they passed the Shannon resolution creating a committee of five to make the study and suggest remedies to the next session of Congress. There was no limitation placed upon the scope of the inquiry or on the amount of money which might be expended in gathering the data, although the possibility that the sum spent might reach considerable provoked opposition from many of the members.

The display of manufactured articles was brought into the chamber of Representative Jos. B. Shannon, Democrat, Missouri, author of the resolution. He handled the exhibits with all the fervor of a medicine show barker and he got response when Representative Thomas L. Blanton, Democrat, Texas, got up and denounced he wailed, but that they were products of an English factory, imported into this country in competition with a citizen manufacturer.

Snatching the pink pajamas from the clerk's table, where they rested with the other exhibits, Representative Shannon unfurled them to the inspection of his colleagues.

"Now these," he said, "were bought at the government store at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. What in the world do they want with these things in an army fort—unless it is to deceive the enemy."

He snatched a pair of shoes from the table, and, holding them aloft, he advised the membership that they were not only sold by the government in competition with a citizen retailer, but that they were products of an English factory, imported into this country in competition with a citizen manufacturer.

But the piece de resistance of his show was a half dozen little bottles, bought, he said, by his clerk in a government store right in the capital. They contained, he declared, reading from the label "gin extract, rum extract, corn extract, rye extract."

"And the man who sold them," he shouted, "said there was a great demand for them."

Garner Bill Provides Many Arkansas Projects

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Congressman Tilman B. Parks issued a statement Tuesday pertaining to the public buildings for Arkansas as authorized in the Garner bill. He said published reports were incomplete. Mr. Parks' statement follows:

"The report from Washington to the Gazette with reference to the public buildings in the Garner bill is incomplete. The revised bill, which will doubtless pass the House next week, provides for new buildings or the demolition and reconstruction of old buildings at the following places in Arkansas: Arkansas City, Helena, Ft. Smith, Blytheville, Jonesboro, Pine Bluff, Benton, Bentonville, Clarksville, DeQuena, Lake Village, Magnolia, Malvern, Monticello, Nashville, Cecil, Paris, Siloam Springs, Smackover, Springdale, Van Buren, Walnut Ridge, Warren, Wynne, Ashdown, Dardanelle, Dermott, DeWitt, Engle, Eudora, Gurdon, Hamburg, Pigott and Pochatosh."

Contents of notes found attached to pillows on the bed of the girls were unrevealed.

Wounds Inflicted By Brother Fatal

Dies in Texarkana Hospital Without Regaining Consciousness

TEXARKANA — Walter Harvey, aged 24, who was brought from his home 15 miles southeast of here Monday night to a Texarkana hospital for treatment for gunshot wounds, died early Tuesday without having regained consciousness. His brother, Ebbe Harvey, 21, who surrendered shortly after the shooting, still is in jail.

Prosecuting Attorney H. M. Barney filed a murder charge against him Tuesday afternoon and he will have a hearing in Municipal Court Thursday or Friday.

Officers said that the killing took place at a still which was operated jointly by the brothers and followed a quarrel between them concerning the ownership of some of the apparatus. Ebbe is said to have admitted that he fired the shot which killed his brother, but instead he did so in self-defense. He said his brother was trying to shoot him with a pistol and he picked up a shotgun and fired twice. His statement is said to have been corroborated in part by others who witnessed the shooting.

Officers said the brothers were under bond on liquor charges. The dead man is survived by his wife and one child. Ebbe is unmarried. The aged parents of the brother live near where the tragedy occurred.

U. S. Accepts Plan For World Parley

Britain Sponsors Conference to Discuss Economic Situation

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States has consented to attend an international economic conference in London, sponsored by Great Britain to consider methods of stabilizing world commodity prices.

The date of the conference and its program have not been announced, but the State Department made it clear Tuesday that the American acceptance of the invitation was with the understanding that only economic questions shall be considered and political questions such as war debts and reparations barred.

France, Italy and other European powers also have been invited by Great Britain. It is the understanding of the State Department that the scope of the conference will be broad. Tariffs, monetary reforms and all subjects which relate to commerce and banking probably will be included in the agenda.

The meeting will in no way be connected with the Lausanne conference, which is to be held June 16, primarily for the consideration of reparations and intergovernmental debts, but the latter also will discuss plans for the betterment of world economic conditions.

Huge Revenue Bill Endorsed by Senate In All Night Session

House Members Ready
Bill—Will Consider
It Thursday

TO VOTE THIS WEEK

Economy Measure Will Be Discussed in Senate
Wednesday

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Congress is to conclude the balancing of the budget early Wednesday.

The billion dollar revenue bill returned to the house again after Senate action goes to consider early Thursday and action is expected to be completed by the end of the week and the twin of the get bill, the $238,000,000 economy measure gets the right of way, beginning later Wednesday in the Senate.

All Night Session

The final roll call came at 11 a. m. after a day and night filled with a whirlwind of events climaxed by surprise call on Capitol Hill by the president to ask prompt and unified action to arrest foreign attacks on American dollar.

The last minute endorsement by the president of the disputed manufacturing sales tax, however, was accepted by the Senate in its driving thrust, the 1.75 per cent manufacturers' sales tax was advanced late in the night by Sen. Walsh, Democrat, Missouri, and voted down 53 to 21.

The Senate did respond to the administration appeal advanced by the president and Secretary of the Treasury for an eleventh-hour addition of $600,000 in new revenue to make the government pay its way next year.

The changes were estimated to yield $280,000,000 and bring the total of the measure up to $1,115,000,000 asked by the administration.

The greatest peacetime revenue-raising bill now goes to conference for adjustment of differences with the House, but no time limit is set for the conference between the two chambers and final enactment of the legislation within a week is expected.

Its nerves ragged from the day and night grind, the Senate wrangled persistently throughout the long day, and a sharp exchange occurred just before final passage.

Senator Tydings of Maryland and Glass of Virginia, both Democrats, questioned sharply whether the bill would balance the budget.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, an administration spokesman, firmly insisted the bill, together with the economy measure of $238,000,000, which reached the Senate shortly before midnight, would accomplish that purpose.

Despite the late hour, almost a full attendance remained on hand to meet the sales tax issue and pass the bill. In the gallery were some of the women members of the House, including Mrs. Effie Wingo of Arkansas, in evening dress.

Conferees Appointed

Immediately after the bill was passed, Vice President Curtis appointed conferees on behalf of the Senate to adjust differences with the House.

He named Chairman Smoot of the Finance Committee, and Senators Watson, Republican, Indiana; Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania; Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, and King, Democrat, Utah.

Cotton Belt Wins Refunding Battle

90 Per Cent of Bonds Deposited Under Loan
Agreement

NEW YORK — (AP) — The St. Louis, Southwestern Railway Co., known as the "Cotton Belt," Tuesday won a last-minute battle against a threatened receivership. At a meeting of the board of directors it was announced that sufficient bonds of the $20,721,750 issue, due Wednesday, had been deposited with the Chase National bank to complete the 90 per cent necessary to make the refunding plan operative.

Those who deposited their bonds, according to the plan, are to receive 50 per cent in cash and half in new five per cent general and refunding mortgage securities. The maturing issue was consolidated one bearing four per cent coupons. The Interstate Commerce Commission had approved a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the refunding project. At a directors' meeting last Thursday it was announced only approximately 87 per cent of the outstanding

Needed: A Dole Substitute

ONE out of every four of the 2,700,000 unemployed men in England is no longer fit for normal work.

This bit of news is contained in statistics recently released by the British government. It presents a problem which might well be given some extended consideration on this side of the water.

These jobless men who are below par physically number between 600,000 and 700,000. A United Press cable summarizing the report about them remarks:

"Among them they have dropped into a permanent rut. out of which only full-fledged prosperity can rescue them. Their muscles have become soft, their thoughts chronically soured and distorted. Their condition has been likened to shell shock, and some experts now refer to it as 'unemployment shock.'"

"This, then, seems to be one of the brightest fruits of England's famous dole policy. We over here are going to have to think more seriously about an American dole, or its equivalent, in the coming year than we ever have before; it may pay us to keep this English object lesson in mind."

And yet it will not be enough for us simply to say, "The dole has tragic results and we want none of it." If things go on as they have been going, we shall assuredly have to have either the dole or something to take its place, and this little object lesson is useful chiefly because it warns us how vitally important it is that we dig up a good substitute.

The dole doesn't work out well. Those 600,000 English sufferers from "unemployment shock" will be a major problem for England for a good many years to come. But the dole does prevent starvation. It is probably fair to say that in England it has prevented a revolution.

If, then, we reach the point at which some sort of government help for the unemployed becomes necessary, it is up to us to profit by England's example and find a better solution than the dole. It may be extremely hard to find one. But it is quite evident that the job must be done.

Ellison's Record

AS anything can be expected in politics a circular sent out by a candidate for Commissioner of Mines, Manufactures and Agriculture in which much attention is given to the fact that Luther Ellison, former Jonesboro man, candidate for the same office, was convicted following the war for a sugar deal and sentenced to a term at Leavenworth, does not come as a surprise.

In justice to Mr. Ellison who has hosts of friends in Craighead county we wish to inform others over Arkansas that Jonesboro, his home city at the time of the unfortunate occurrence, felt that he was a victim of a technicality in a law which was a wartime measure and which was held invalid soon after his conviction. Through the efforts of the late Senator T. H. Caraway and many other friends Ellison was pardoned by President Woodrow Wilson after serving only a short time.

On his return to Jonesboro a crowd of friends estimated at more than one thousand met him at the train and gave him perhaps the greatest ovation ever accorded any citizen. Nobody felt that he had committed any crime, being the goat in a three way sugar deal that was in violation of a wartime measure. His home people exonerated him then and are strong for him now.

Ellison's record since leaving Jonesboro as head of the South Arkansas Chamber of Commerce has been outstanding for service. His conduct as a citizen has been above reproach. He is one of Arkansas' best boosters.

This paper does not propose to take any hand in politics, keeping its columns free from anything that smacks of political entanglements. The statement about Mr. Ellison is made merely to let the people of this state know that the unfortunate affair of the days following the war did not in any way besmirch the reputation of Luther Ellison and asking that his candidacy be given consideration on its merits alone.

Those wanting a complete history of the Ellison case are cited to the statement of the late Senator T. H. Caraway to the parole board when seeking the pardon for him. It gives true light on the unusual case and exonerates Mr. Ellison from any suspicion of criminality. — Jonesboro Sun.

"Uncle Sam" Indians

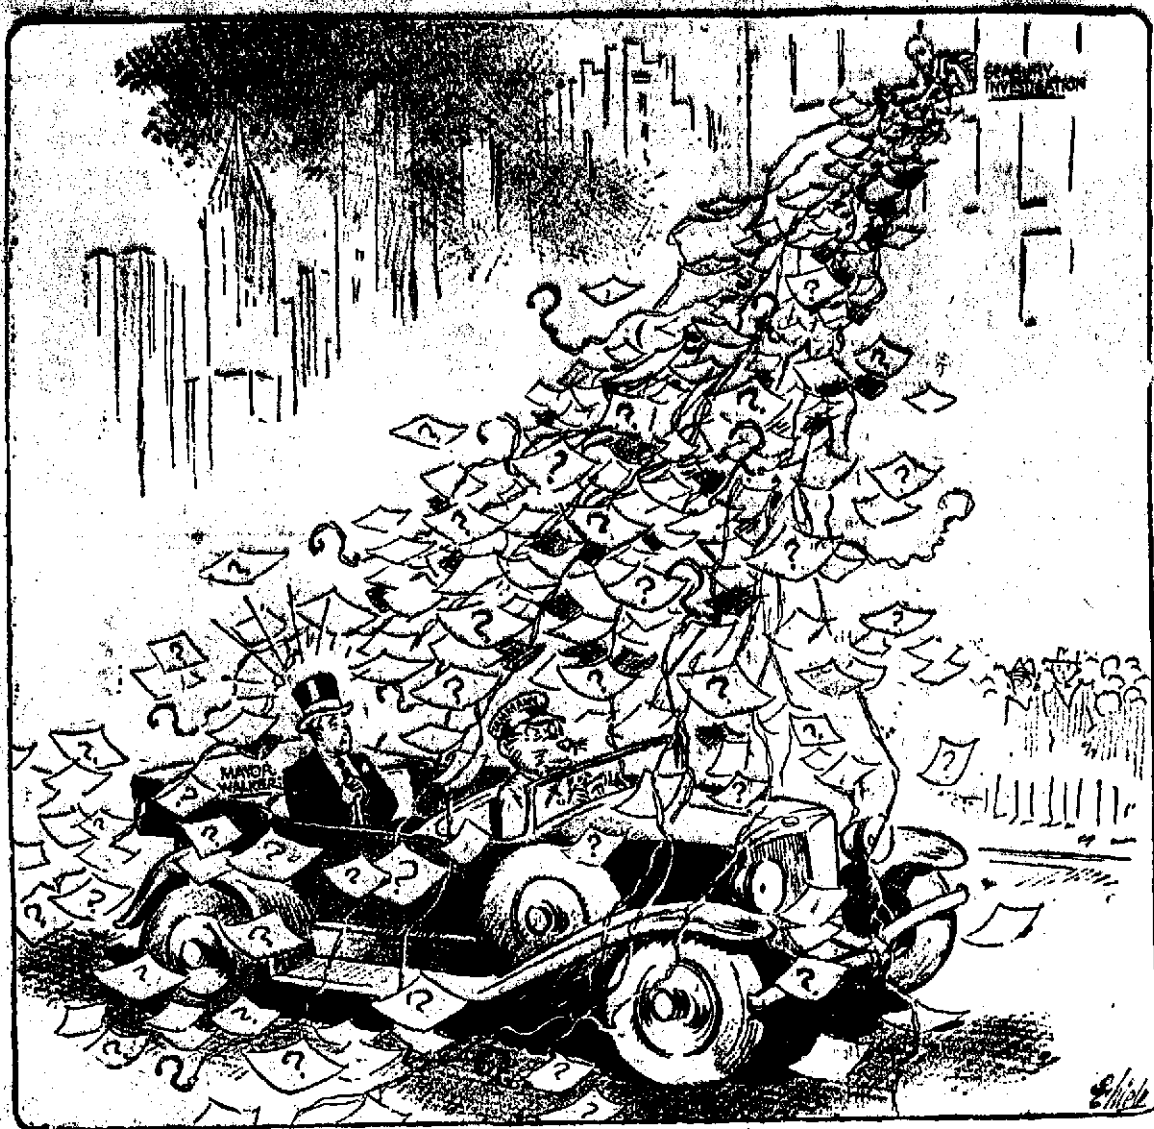

EXPLORERS who return from the darker regions of the earth often bring back very diverting stories. But it is a long time since anyone has popped up with quite as pleasant a yarn as that told by Dr. Thomas W. F. Gann, British archaeologist, who recently landed in New York after exploring the jungles of Guatemala.

Dr. Gann, it seems, discovered in the jungles a tribe that he christened the "Uncle Sam Indians."

These Indians, he says, wore costumes very like that traditional for Uncle Sam. They had red and white striped trousers and they wore dark blue coats with long tails; and Dr. Gann, who knows his cartoons, was immediately struck by their resemblance to the legendary figure.

What all of this may mean is perhaps obscure; but it does come as a welcome, brightly diverting little bit of news.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CHEERY DIXON, 19 and pretty, tells her mother she is going to a club meeting but instead meets Dan Phillips, newspaper reporter with whom she is in love. Her wealthy parents do not know she is acquainted with Dan. Cherry goes with him to interview a bank robber's sweetheart. She blunders into underworld headquarters and a bullet strikes her arm. Dan takes her to a doctor's office and then home. He is trying to explain what has happened when Mrs. Dixon appears. He is very angry and brandishes a newspaper containing Cherry's picture and an account of the shooting. Mr. Dixon orders Dan from the house.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VII

"I CAN'T believe it's real, Dan. I mean—everything happening the way it has. I'm afraid I'll wake up in another minute and find it's just a dream!"

Phillips said, "And I can't believe you're really here. I can't believe a girl like you would even look at me."

She silenced him with gentle fingers pressed to his lips. "I've told you not to say those things! I don't want to hear them."

"But it's true, Cherry. Why everything about you—your sweetness and your coming to meet me this afternoon and, well, everything—just goes with a difference between us. Oh, I love you for it. You know that. But, Cherry, you're worlds above me. I'm Dan Phillips, reporter—the guy your father told never to enter his house! It's—well, don't you see, dear?"

"Don't I see what?"

"That if things were different I could say a lot of things I can't now? For a father's a rich man. All your life you've lived in a fine home with lots of servants. You've worn beautiful clothes and traveled and all your friends have been rich people—"

"But Dan, what difference does that make?"

"If I live to be 90," Phillips went on, deaf to the interruption, "I'll never have a fourth of the money your father has. I couldn't give you any of the things you're accustomed to, Cherry. Do you know how I think of you?"

"How?"

"As a beautiful princess who's as sweet and wonderful as she is beautiful. That's what you are! A princess!"

Cherry shrugged uncomfortably. "I don't want to be a princess," she said. "It sounds lonely. Oh, Dan, let's not talk. Let's just be happy together."

SUDDENLY

their elysium was shattered. Phillips said abruptly:

"Look here, there isn't going to be any trouble about your coming to meet me this afternoon, is there? Do you think your father—"

She assured him everything would be all right. No one knew she had left the house. She would be back before her absence had been noticed.

"What time is it?" Cherry asked.

The sun had lowered behind the tree tops. Phillips turned his wrist so that the girl could see the watch dial.

"After five!" she exclaimed. "Oh, I'll have to get back. Why, I'd no idea it was so late—"

The driver headed the taxicab toward Sherwood Heights. Recklessly Cherry thrust aside giggling that had begun to force themselves on her consciousness. There would be just time to fling on another dress and appear at dinner.

Glancing quickly over her shoulder she turned the knob.

Sarah would help her. If she entered the living room at the usual time no one would suspect she had been out of the house.

Oh, of course it would be all right!

These last minutes with Dan were too precious to waste on foolish presentiments.

"You do understand about everything now, don't you?" she whispered. "That it wasn't my fault? I didn't answer your phone calls?"

"I don't understand anything when you look up at me that way."

"But, Dan—"

"Darling, I'll admit I was an idiot to doubt you even for a minute. I'll never do it again. Do you really have to go back to that stone castle of yours right away? Isn't there any way in the world you could escape and have dinner with me? Why not telephone?"

"Oh, I couldn't! Don't you see, no one knows I'm away. I don't want them to find out."

"But, Cherry, we'll have to find some way out of all this. How? We ever going to see each other if you have to run away like Cinderella at the stroke of midnight? Something's got to be done. Maybe if I had a talk with your father—"

"Don't do that, Dan. It wouldn't do any good. We'll manage some way, though. I'm so happy about finding you and knowing you care. I'm just certain everything's going to be all right!"

"Just the same, Cherry—"

"Please! I tell you everything's going to be all right!"

The cab stopped a block from the Dixon home. It was time to say good-by. Cherry's lips formed the words but they were crushed against Dan's. His arm tightened about the girl. Realization that they were leaving one another sud-

Rector Defended By Girl's Mother

Near-Nude Pose With Davidson "Trick," Says Trial Witness

LONDON.—(P)—The mother of a 15-year-old girl who posed in the near-nude with the Rev. R. F. Davidson of Suffrey, came to the defense of the accused rector at his ecclesiastical trial for immorality Tuesday. She said the photograph of the girl and the rector introduced by the prosecution was obtained fraudulently, and agreed with the Rev. Mr. Davidson that he was trapped into posing.

The picture shows the minister holding a shawl rather ineffectively against the form of the girl. The prosecution contended that it was proof that the rector was somewhat indiscreet.

The mother testified Tuesday that she had asked the rector to be present when a photograph of her daughter was taken for use in an advertisement in the United States.

She had stipulated, she said, that her daughter was not to be photographed in the nude, and put her in Mr. Davidson's care to that end. The pastor had testified, also, that the mother was present when the photograph was taken.

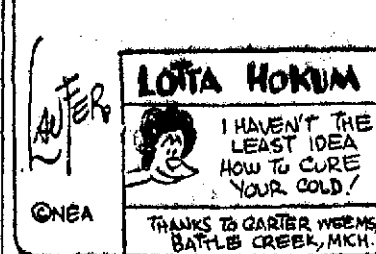

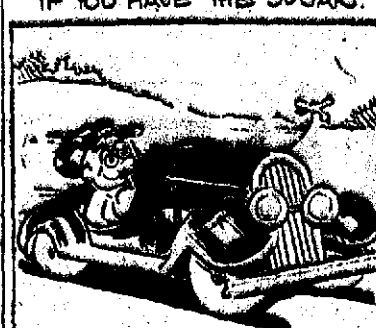

The mother appeared before the court in Westminster, and said that photographers had told her publication of her daughter's photograph might mean a lot to her career.

"It was just a disgusting trap, well worked out from the beginning," the mother concluded.

The Bishop of London, another witness, told Mr. Davidson's work for outcasts and said that he had never heard of an attack on the rector's moral character before the present charges were brought.

Magnolia and Bearden Men Renominated as District Directors

The nominating primary election of the Mid-South Cotton Growers association ended Thursday, May 26, with the following men nominated to run for director from this district:

C. T. Taylor, of Magnolia, Ark., who was re-nominated, is the present Director; other nominees are, R. L. Lightfoot, of Bearden, Ark.

The election of directors of the Mid South association is carried on by a postal card ballot system, and in the primary the two men receiving the highest number of votes are considered the nominees, and their names are placed on a second postal card ballot, from which the member makes his selection.

According to an announcement of the Mid South association, these general election ballots must be returned to the Memphis office not later than June 21.

The Mid South Association maintained a branch office in Hope last year, with Max Cox in charge.

The local branch handled approximately 20,000 bales of cotton, which was a decided increase over the previous year.

According to Association Officials, the Mid South maintains a membership of over 6,000 in this territory.

Mrs. P. H. Stevens and daughter, Miss Joyce Stevens of Blowing Rock, were Tuesday shoppers in the city.

Mrs. M. J. Warwick has returned from an extended visit in San Antonio, Texas, where she visited with her brother, T. B. Rayburn and family and grandson, Dr. A. H. Robinson and Mrs. Robinson, en route home, she spent several days in Dallas, visiting with Mrs. Ada Talley and other friends.

Mrs. Taylor Stuart and Mrs. Will Stewart of Edgewood Lodge, Caddo Gap, are in the city Wednesday, making definite plans and arrangements for the Girls' Camp, which will be opened soon at Edgewood Lodge. The girl club activities will open with the Girl Scouts of Arkadelphia, on June 1, followed by groups of girls from different towns over the state during the month of June, the camp proper opening on July 1st.

On Tuesday May 31st, J. H. Hartsfield, one of Hempstead county's best farmers and boosters, celebrated his 77th birthday at his comfortable and attractive country home near DeAnn. For the occasion, this home, even noted for its hospitality and good will, had the doors thrown wide open, and the guests were most cordially greeted and welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. Hartsfield. At the noon hour they were invited into the dining room, where a flower adorned table held a most tempting and delicious dinner, which was served to the following guests, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Hartsfield and seven children, Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Hartsfield and four children, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Salisbury and four children and Mrs. S. R. Samuels and three children, all members of the Hartsfield family. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Allen and two children and W. S. Wimberly, neighbors. Guests from this city were Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Kaufman, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Ward and Miss Martha Martindale. One guest of note was absent—"Mr. Depression," for Mr. Hartsfield's slogan is "Diversified farming, and live at home."

Missouri Pacific Team Beat Bradley

7 to 7 Deadlock Broken in Ninth Inning, Giving Locals 11 to 8 Lead

The Hope Missouri Pacific baseball team rallied in the ninth inning to break a 7-7 deadlock to defeat Bradley Tuesday afternoon by a score of 11 to 8. The game was played at Bradley.

It was a pitching duel between Schooley and the Bradley twirler until the ninth when Mallet singled. Ramsey waked, Sinyton was safe on an error and Jimmy Cook singled to score two runs. Wallace Cook crashed out a double and brought home J. Cook and Sinyton, and the scoring was over.

Bradley scored one run in the last of the ninth, but were unable to get enough to tie the score, and the ball game ended, 11 to 8 in favor of the Hope team.

The Missouri Pacific team plays at Taylor next Thursday afternoon, and are scheduled to meet Garland City in that town Sunday evening.

Mechanical Man Coming to Saenger

Mystery Man to Appear at Local Theatre Two Days

Zingaro the world famous Mechanical Man will appear on the Saenger stage Thursday and Friday. Zingaro who defies nature with his mysterious feats offers a purse of one hundred dollars to any man or woman who can make him smile or bat an eyebrow or make any movement not registered on an attached control panel. Zingaro the man who from outward appearance is human because he breathes, walks and makes motions will not attempt any of the above feats unless properly wired with electric batteries that connect to many different parts of his body.

This act promises to be one of the most novel that has ever been presented on the Saenger stage. The feature picture that plays in connection with the act is "Sinners in the Sun," starring Carole Lombard and Chester Morris.

Stage Show Fails to Appear Here

Freddie Green Breaches Contract With Malco Theater Chain

Regrets were expressed Wednesday morning by Manager Elmer Hecht over the failure of Freddie Green and his Biltmore orchestra to appear for a stage performance at the Saenger Tuesday night, disappointing a large audience.

Green and the Biltmore orchestra were booked for the Malco chain of theaters, by arrangement with Sam Kirby of the Arkansas theater in Little Rock, Mr. Hecht said.

The orchestra opened on the Malco circuit at Camden, Sunday and Monday, and was booked for Hope Tuesday and Wednesday. They failed to appear, however, the theater never being advised by the orchestra manager, whose troupe left Camden ostensibly headed for Hope.

"Letting us down in Hope, they have breached their contract with the entire 28 Malco theaters," Mr. Hecht said, explaining that it was his first experience as a showman to have actors deliberately fail to fulfill an engagement, or advise the house ahead of time.

Long Runs Things In Louisiana House

'Kingfish' Breaks Legislative Precedent as Law-makers Grant Wish

NEW ORLEANS.—He may not be so all-powerful where he is carried on the pay rolls of the United States Senate as Senator Huey P. Long, but he certainly is in his old home state.

He breaks every legislative precedent when he wants things done and his followers know to him and accede by their votes to his every wish.

In the House of the state legislature, now in session at Baton Rouge, Senator Long ran things Tuesday as he saw fit.

He had reported favorably four bills placing a tax on cigarettes and cigars, placing a tax on all life insurance premiums, placing a tax on every five-cent bottle of drink sold in the state of Louisiana. It was not so much what was done, but how Senator Long did it.

He appeared before the Ways and Means Committee, and demanded that these bills be reported immediately, which was done. For years in Louisiana and in other states legislative precedent has been to grant hearings on bills where such hearings were demanded. In said did those interested in these bills ask for a hearing.

"You can't have it," snapped the "Kingfish." "We know what we are doing and we're going to do it."

To a protestant representing the New Orleans Association of Commerce the "Kingfish" said:

"Now let me tell you something about that 'assassination of commerce' down in New Orleans—that outfit is always trying to get up things. That 'assassination of commerce' doesn't speak the sentiments of the people. Give them time on this bill and they will have special trains running up here. Give 'em time and we'll have to have a crew of interpreters to find out just what they do want."

President George Long of the Louisiana Manufacturers' Association said that it was customary to be heard on all bills affecting taxation of not only business, but the people at large.

"Why didn't all you loving, kindly manufacturers with your hearts bursting with human sympathy do something to help us feed the hungry and aid the unemployed," shouted Senator know Davy Crockett and James Bowie, but it will interest you to know that they tried to kill each other in its shadowy assembly that stout-hearted Arkansas warriors that fought so gallantly at the Alamo in the war with Mexico.

STATE'S FIRST COURT

At one time a giant catalpa tree stood on the old capitol grounds. Under this ancient tree have sat not only the village loiterers and wisewomen, but Huey Long at President George Long. Then the "Kingfish" commenced yelling about lobbyists.

"You lobbyists are always hollering about delay," he roared. "Well, I'm lobbying myself today—I'm lobbying for the people of Louisiana."

The "Kingfish" was reminded that the Association of Commerce and other business organizations of New Orleans had letters of thanks and expressions of gratitude from him over all given him. Then the "Kingfish," through Representative Wimberly, had the debate closed and the bills were recommended to the House.

Gov. O. K. Allen, ostensibly the head of the state but a "corner" business partner of Huey P. Long, was completely in the background throughout the day. No member of the legislature appeared to notice what Governor Allen was doing or what he might have to say.

With the state millions of dollars in debt, with more millions on which interest must be paid, the administration forces today introduced a measure proposing that $4,500,000 of outstanding loans, which cannot be paid, be funded into bonds on which, it is proposed to pay six per cent interest.

The "Kingfish" is said to have called Governor Allen and his administration followers to New Orleans, where he had conferences with them Saturday and Sunday, and told them what he wants and will have. It is rumored that at one of these meetings he pounded the table and shouted:

"Economy! Hell, jobs and more jobs—and plenty of pay rolls—are what we need until after we beat Edwin S. Broussard for the Senate. You can't win elections unless you give the boys plenty of pot-licker and corn pone."

Those honored people who practiced law with the walls of the old building were Allen, M. Oakey, Edward Cross, Albert Pike, Judge Hubbard, William Trimble, J. W. Jackson, John B. Eakin, Bernard F. Hempstead, Judge Rose, and B. B. Battle.

Then the town of Washington bought the building and made a school of it. There many noted people who spent happy school days in the old historic building. Mrs. Mary James Field was one of the first teachers. After it was used as a school building, it later became a residence. But it was vacated a long time and during that time it was kept locked to keep the interior from being ravaged by relic seekers. During the period of changing from a school house to a residence and later being vacated, a new brick courthouse was erected. While Washington was still the seat of justice for Hempstead county the new building was the courthouse.

The first Hempstead county court was held over a hundred years ago between Washington and Bleavins. If you have the patience, ability, and good eyes you can read the old records written years ago from pages that are now mellow with age.

Seventeen years before our state of Arkansas ever came into existence, which will be one hundred and thirty years this next June, the first court was held in Hempstead county, Territory of Missouri. The records show that the court was held in the home of John English which is said to have been somewhere on the river. The old court records from Washington.

The Grand Jury of this first court were Francis McCellan, Benjamin J. Clark, Jr., Will Stephenson, Henry Stephens, Calvin Merry, Matthew Moss, John C. Pennington, Benjamin Tate, Abraham Smith, Jeremiah Tate, Law James English, John Harpold, Will Crabtree, Simon Witter, Isaac Pennington, Will Ashbrook, Thomas Jotals, Briskell Berry, John Holcomb, Samuel Hagon, Jeremiah Tate, and Benjamin Clark, Sr.

The first will on record in the courthouse was made by Robert Dunville on the sixteenth day of September in the year of our Lord eighteen hundred and nineteen at the house of John and Abigail Dent before Robert M. Stevenson.

The old capitol is now in a state of preservation in order that it will always be before the people to remind them of the many historic deeds that originated within its walls. The movement to restore and preserve the war-time capitol originated with the Pat Cleburn Chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, at Hope. The chapter launched a "drive" to secure legislative aid for the project, and was successful. A bill was introduced by Representative Curtis Cannon, and outlined by Colonel W. H. Eetter of Washington, the grandson of the founder of the "Washington Telegraph." The bill provided that two of the three members of the memorial commission should be members of the sponsoring organization.

Those on the committee were Judge Eetter, Mrs. J. A. Henry, and Mrs. T. Y. Williams, the grand daughter of James Moss who was the founder of Washington and who was also the first judge.

Building Preserved. Because of the splendid efforts of its members, the building is now for the use of the U. S. D. C., but it belongs to the entire state. The work of rehabilitating the historic landmark—the "Cradle of Southern Culture"—was completed on May the first with the laying of the corner stone by Grand Lodge of Arkansas, F. and A. Masons, and the building was opened to the public on May the eleventh. However, the heroic shadow of the legendary south passed in review on Thursday, May the first, in the old house even now a person can see the same plan as in the original. In the center are two large columns, the cracked places in them were filled with putty. Hanging on the walls are pictures of different famous people from Washington. The platform is furnished with three chairs and steps lead from each end of it. The American flag is draped across the front of the platform. In the building, also is a statue of an old Indian carved from a cypress log with a pocket knife. Grandson D. Royston's cane and trunk are still there. He carried the trunk through the war with him. On each side of the room there is a fire-place of ordinary size. To the right of the front door there is a hat closet. The building is two story, and the second floor is used for large meetings.

Suspect Piled Guilty In Scranton Robbery

PARIS, Ark., June 12.—Pleading guilty to participation in the $300 robbery of the Logan County bank at Scranton last Friday, Clarence Long, aged 25, was held to the grand jury by Justice G. Carey Tuesday.

Ray Smith, 27, waived examination when arraigned with Long, and also was held to the grand jury.

They were brought here Tuesday morning from Danville. Long was arrested near his home at Hartford Sunday and Smith was arrested at the home of a friend at Howe, Okla.

Nineteen and thirty, at Washington when the people of Hempstead county re-dedicated the Civil war capitol, now called the War Memorial Building. Ex-Governor Hillman Elough delivered the oration dedicating the restored building, which had been improved and put in a state of preservation by the spending of five thousand dollars. It was restored through the efforts of F. N. Porter, architect, and A. P. Bailey, contractor, who were appointed by Governor Harvey Parnell.

In the old house even now a person can see the same plan as in the original. In the center are two large columns, the cracked places in them were filled with putty. Hanging on the walls are pictures of different famous people from Washington. The platform is furnished with three chairs and steps lead from each end of it. Critiques Building Measure

Qualifies 5-Point Program He Claims Will Bring Back Prosperity

WASHINGTON, June 1.—In an interview with the government "critic" on the subject of public works, James A. Quinn, candidate for the Democratic nomination, Sunday said a five-point program to help the country live over hard times. He said for:

Building "wasteful expenditures for unproductive public enterprises," "reduction of prohibition, enactment of a moderate sales tax in lieu of 'some of these now being considered,' lowering tariffs and reciprocity agreements with foreign nations to keep them low, and a reduction of taxes as soon as possible.

Quinn, here to make a Memorial day address Monday at Arlington, denied reports of an "understanding" or deal between Missouri Democrats and supporters of Franklin D. Roosevelt, leading candidate for the presidential nomination. The Missouri delegation of 36 is instructed to vote for Quinn.

There has been no agreement, explicit or implied, tentative or otherwise," he said in response to an inquiry "between any member of the Missouri delegation or anyone representing myself to have any kind of a deal or understanding with any active or potential candidate or any of his representatives."

Quinn said his views on public works coincide with those of President Hoover. Reed frowned and replied: "Hoover is undoubtedly right." But he's been on both sides of every question. He originally was for the kind of public works that I am criticizing. The term has been used that he's the loudest magpi on a squawking train."

How CARDUI Helps Women

"I WAS passing through a critical time in my life, and I suffered a great deal," says Mrs. Mat Howard, of Quilan, Texas. "I improved very much after I had taken Cardui for a while. Since then, I have given Cardui to my five daughters. As each one of them arrived at womanhood, I gave her Cardui for several months. I found they were less nervous and felt stronger. All of them have continued the use of Cardui in their homes. In my home we have all been better for having taken it."

Physician Killed By Insane Patient

Louisianan Objects to Suggestion of "Ride," and Shoots Doctor

MONROE, La., (A.P.)—Dr. Baxter Porter, 33, Monroe physician, was shot to death Monday afternoon by Jim Newsom, 35, who became deranged after summoning the physician to his home. Newsom held officers at bay for an hour before the physician's body could be removed and the deranged man lodged in the parish jail.

An inquest held by Dr. C. P. Gray, coroner, found that Dr. Porter died of gunshot wounds inflicted by Newsom during a state of insanity. Sheriff Milton Coverdale said Newsom probably would be committed to the state hospital for insane at Jackson, La.

Sheriff Coverdale said that Newsom's daughter, 5, said she telephoned the doctor upon request of her father who complained of being ill. She said the physician, arriving at the home, suggested that Newsom accompany him on an automobile ride for some "fresh air."

Her father then became excited, she said, and cried out that he had been "double-crossed," so often that he was not "going to take any chances of being 'taken for a ride.'" Her father grabbed a pistol from a bureau drawer and she ran from the room.

She said she heard a shot fired and then ran from the house. Newsom, refused to allow any one in the house until a former fellow railroad worker, Pat Handley, came up on the porch and talked to him, inducing him to open the door. Handley went in, removed the physician's body and disarmed the deranged Newsom, who was removed to the jail.

Dr. Porter first was shot in the chest with a revolver, officers said. Police Supt. L. V. Tarver said Newsom stated he then shot the physician through the head with a shotgun rather than see him suffer.

69 Students Graduate in Hendrix Exercises

CONWAY, Ark., (A.P.)—Maintenance of ideals upheld by preceding generations was urged by the Rev. Ivan Lee Holt, of St. Louis, in the baccalaureate address Monday at Hendrix College commencement exercises. There were 69 members of the graduating classes. In his discussion of "Youth and the New Freedom," Dr. Holt listed the responsibilities imposed upon the new generation in the renouncing of practices of former generations.

"The STRIKE-OUT is only 5% of pitching"

Robert G. Groves

"You must know and work on the weaknesses of every batter," says the major league strike-out king of the Athletics. "Fanning a clouter in a pinch makes the crowd roar, but it is not everything in pitching. You must have good control and never lose poise or confidence. You must be at your best with men on bases. And you must keep on pitching until the end of the game. Pitching is no game for anybody unless he has power and nerve. It takes everything."
